DAY 1 WEDNESDAY • JUNE 3, 2026

Dublin's Bloody Sunday

Background:

In Dublin, the conflict largely took the form of assassinations and reprisals on both sides. The events on the morning of 21 November were an effort by the IRA in Dublin, under Michael Collins and Richard Mulcahy, to destroy the British intelligence network in the city. In 1920 the War of Independence was ongoing in Ireland.

On the morning of November 21st, an elite assassination unit known as 'The Squad' mounted an operation planned by Michael Collins, Director of Intelligence of the Irish Republican Army (IRA). Their orders were clear – they were to take out the backbone of the British Intelligence network in Ireland, specifically a group of officers known as 'The Cairo Gang'.

The shootings took place in and around Dublin's south inner city and resulted in fourteen deaths, including six intelligence agents and two members of the British Auxiliary Force. Later that afternoon, Dublin were scheduled to play Tipperary in a one-off challenge match at Croke Park, the proceeds of which were in aid of the Republican Prisoners Dependents Fund. Tensions were high in Dublin due to fears of a reprisal by Crown forces following the assassinations. Despite this a crowd of almost 10,000 gathered in Croke Park. Throw-in was scheduled for 2.45pm, but it did not start until 3.15pm as crowd congestion caused a delay.

Eye-witness accounts suggest that five minutes after the throw-in an aeroplane flew over Croke Park. It circled the ground twice and shot a red flare - a signal to a mixed force of Royal Irish Constabulary (R.I.C.), Auxiliary Police and Military who then stormed into Croke Park and opened fire on the crowd.

Amongst the spectators, there was a rush to all four exits, but the army stopped people from leaving the ground and this created a series of crushes around the stadium. Along the Cusack Stand side, hundreds of people braved the twenty-foot drop and jumped into the adjacent Belvedere Sports Grounds. The shooting lasted for less than two minutes.

That afternoon in Croke Park, 14 people including one player (Michael Hogan from Tipperary), lost their lives. It is estimated that 60 – 100 people were injured.

Irish Lore

Activity overview

Irish lore is rich with captivating tales and mythical creatures that have been passed down through generations. In Dublin, travelers can immerse themselves in this fascinating culture by exploring various aspects of Irish folklore.

One of the most famous figures in Irish mythology is the leprechaun, a mischievous fairy known for guarding pots of gold at the end of rainbows. Visitors often enjoy seeking out leprechaun-themed experiences, from themed tours to local souvenirs.

Another popular legend is that of the Banshee, a spirit who is said to wail when someone is about to die. This haunting figure represents the deep connection the Irish have with their history and the supernatural. Many tours in Dublin delve into these stories, offering insights into how they have shaped Irish identity.

Dublin itself is a city steeped in history, making it an ideal backdrop for exploring Irish lore. Sites like the Dublin Castle and the National Museum of Ireland often feature exhibits that highlight these myths and legends, allowing tourists to connect with the stories that have shaped the nation.

To truly experience Irish lore, consider joining a guided storytelling tour or visiting local pubs where traditional music and tales are shared. This not only enhances your understanding of the culture but also provides a unique way to engage with the local community.

Whether you are wandering through the streets of Dublin or participating in folklore-themed activities, the enchanting world of Irish lore is sure to leave a lasting impression on your travels.

Welcome to Dublin

Today you will arrive in Dublin

Area Overview

Dublin is a handsome-looking city. It doesn't wow the visitor in the way that, say, Prague, Venice, or Amsterdam does. Instead, Dublin slowly warms the heart of the traveler. The large leafy squares/parks surrounded by Georgian townhouses, each one with a different colored front door; the Guinness Storehouse; the campus of Trinity College; the gothic splendor of St. Patrick's Cathedral are all popular sites.

But it's really about the Dubliners themselves that make this city so worthwhile spending time in. The denizens of Dublin are friendly in the way that New Yorkers are apparently gruff. Their reputation precedes them. But then they live up to it. Sit in one of the city's ambient pubs—there are literally about 1,000 to choose from—and sure enough, you'll end up in a conversation with someone. And then another someone and yet another.

The city is split by the River Liffey. The north side has a reputation for being a bit rougher around the edges and the southside a bit less so. The two sides didn't really love each other, either. These days the waters have muddied and the division is less important than it ever has been.

The city has come a long way in just about one long generation, since the days when poverty was more pervasive here. Ireland may be on the other side of the Celtic Tiger—the turn-of-the-millennium economic miracle that made the Irish economy roar for a while—but 21st-century Dublin is a happy, prosperous place to be these days.

Train from Dublin to Limerick

- Depart Merrion Hotel
- Arrive Adare Manor Hotel

1.5 hour duration

Welcome to Limerick

Today you will arrive in Limerick

Area Overview

An ancient city where the River Shannon meets the Wild Atlantic Way, Limerick is quirky, arty and utterly individual.

Limerick is a city full of little “wows”. First off, there’s its location – right on the grey-blue gush of the River Shannon. Then, there’s its history: from brutal sieges in the 17th century to the grand Georgian era of the 18th century, all of which is written into the town’s streetscapes. And then there’s its music, art and literature, from The Cranberries to Pulitzer prizewinning author Frank McCourt. This vibrant city is a place of tragedy and regeneration, of culture and "craic" (fun), of little secrets and famous locals. And it’s a place that gets under your skin.

There are few better places to discover Limerick's cultural heart than the restored Milk Market on Cornmarket Row. Sitting under a vast white canopy, the market is like a microcosm of the city: colourful, creative and cool, with occasional pop-up restaurant events, artisan foods, antiques, music and art.

It's just a short stroll from here to Limerick's Georgian Quarter, where the streetscapes open up into wide, elegant avenues lined with grand Georgian architecture. The People's Museum of Limerick has a small and interesting collections of items and artefacts, but it's really the building that's the showpiece here. It's one of six grand structures on Pery Square terrace, which is widely considered to be among the best examples of Georgian architecture on the island. Just down the road, the Limerick City Gallery of Art keeps things fresh with changing contemporary art exhibitions.

Cliffs of Moher

Activity overview

Today you will visit the famous Cliffs of Moher—one of Ireland's most breathtaking and iconic natural landmarks—a true must-see. The drive takes approximately 1 hour and 25 minutes, offering scenic views along the way.

South of the Burren is another of Ireland's natural wonders. The Cliffs of Moher is a sheer precipice 8km (5 miles), rising to a height of 214m (702 feet) and is one of the most impressive stretches of coast in the West of Ireland. It's especially impressive during the nesting season for the quantity and variety of seabirds who gather there. O'Briens Tower stands near the highest point and has served as a viewing point for visitors for hundreds of years.

Walking along the cliffs will provide you with some great photos and on a clear day, you can see the Aran Islands and Galway Bay. The cliffs feature in a pivotal scene in Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince where Harry and Professor Dumbledore apparate on a rock off the shore and have also appeared in TV shows such as Father Ted and many TV advertisements. Incidentally, the iconic house that the priests live in in Father Ted is also in Co Clare and you can have tea there. At 250m high, some say the Cliffs of Moher are the most dramatic in Europe.

The wildlife in the area, including dolphins and even the occasional whale, seem to appreciate it too. You could take in the stunning views towards the Aran Islands and Connemara on a cliff-side walk, visit Atlantic Edge – the visitor centre, or take a one-hour boat trip under the cliffs from Doolin and Liscannor piers with Cliffs of Moher Cruises.

Cash and Card Guidelines for Traveling in Europe

When traveling in Europe, managing finances smoothly is crucial for a hassle-free experience. Here are some guidelines for using cash and cards across the continent:

1. Understanding Currency:

- Euro: The Euro (€) is the most widely used currency in Europe, adopted by 19 of the 27 European Union countries, known as the Eurozone.
- Other Currencies: Countries outside the Eurozone, like Switzerland, the UK, Norway, and others, use their own currencies, such as the Swiss Franc, British Pound, and Norwegian Krone.

2. Using Credit and Debit Cards:

- Wide Acceptance: Credit and debit cards are widely accepted in most European countries, especially in cities and tourist areas. Check to be sure your card offers Foreign Exchange Free use! American Express and Chase cards generally offer this.
- Chip and PIN: Europe uses the chip-and-PIN technology. Ensure your card is enabled for international use and has a chip.
- Inform Your Bank: Before traveling, notify your bank of your travel plans to avoid any blocks on your card due to foreign transactions.

3. Carrying Cash:

- Accessibility: While cards are commonly used, it's advisable to carry some cash, especially for smaller transactions or in rural areas.
- Exchange Rates: Withdraw cash from ATMs for better exchange rates compared to currency exchange booths. Use ATMs affiliated with banks rather than standalone units in tourist areas to avoid higher fees.

4. ATM Use:

- Fees: Be aware of transaction fees for international withdrawals. Check if your bank has partnerships with European banks to reduce these fees.
- Withdrawal Limit: Some ATMs have a daily withdrawal limit. Plan your cash needs accordingly.

5. Safety Tips:

- Keep Receipts: Save receipts for card transactions to verify against your statements.
- Secure Your Wallet: Use a money belt or a secure, zipped bag to keep your cash and cards safe from pickpockets.

- Multiple Cards: Carry more than one card and store them separately to ensure you have access to funds if one is lost or stolen.
- 6. Mobile Payments:
 - Increasing Popularity: Services like Apple Pay, Google Wallet, and Samsung Pay are becoming more common in Europe.
 - Setup Before Travel: Ensure your device is set up for mobile payments and check its compatibility in your destination.
