IMPORTANT: Passport, Visas & Other Travel Requirements

Passport Requirements: Please be aware of the passport requirements for your upcoming trip.

- We strongly recommend that you check your passport's validity and the number of blank pages available well in advance of your departure date. If your passport does not meet the requirements, we advise you to renew it as soon as possible to avoid any travel disruptions.
- Checking the expiration date of your passport well in advance allows you ample time to renew it if necessary. Many countries require that your passport be valid for at least six months beyond your planned departure date. Failing to meet this requirement may result in denied entry or even being turned away at the airport.
- To validate your passport's expiration date and to understand the specific entry requirements for your destination country, we recommend visiting the official website of your country's passport agency or consulate. These websites provide accurate and up-to-date information regarding passport validity, visa requirements, and any additional entry regulations specific to each country.
- For travelers from the United States, the official website of the U.S. Department of State (travel.state.gov) offers comprehensive information on passport requirements, including a passport validity checker tool. This tool allows you to enter your destination country and travel dates to determine if your passport meets the necessary validity requirements.
- Additionally, it is essential to familiarize yourself with any visa requirements for your destination country. The same official websites mentioned earlier will provide information on visa requirements and how to obtain them.
- We strongly recommend that you review the entry requirements for each destination you plan to visit, including passport validity, visa requirements, and any other specific documentation needed for entry. It is essential to allow sufficient time for obtaining or renewing passports and visas, as processing times may vary.
- Please note that failure to meet the necessary travel document requirements may result in denied entry or other travel disruptions. We encourage you to thoroughly research and comply with all relevant travel regulations to ensure a smooth and hassle-free journey.
- If you have any questions or need assistance regarding travel document requirements, our team is available to provide guidance and direct you to reliable resources.

Disclaimer: Boutique Travel Advisors (BTA) would like to emphasize that it is the sole responsibility of our clients to ensure they possess valid passports, visas, and have met all other necessary requirements prior to travel. While we are here to provide guidance and support, BTA cannot assume responsibility for verifying or ensuring the validity of our clients' travel documents. Backroads - Day 1

*Sofitel Legend Metropole Hanoi

10:30 AM

Start Time

Meeting Point

Sofitel Legend Metropole Hanoi

On the first day of the trip, meet your Backroads Trip Leaders (the folks in Backroads T-shirts) at 10:30 a.m. at the Sofitel Legend Metropole Hanoi (+84-(0)4-38266919), located at 15 Ngo Quyen Street in Hanoi, Vietnam. Please arrive dressed in your walking clothes and bring your passport and Vietnam visa (if separate from your passport), any pedals or saddles to be transported by your leaders to the bike staging the next day, and a daypack with your rain gear and anything else you may want for today's walk.

CYCLO TOUR OF OLD QUARTER: 45 Minutes

TRÚC BACH WALK: 1.5 Miles (minimal elevation gain)

Welcome to Vietnam! After arriving in Hanoi, head to Sofitel Legend Metropole's Le Club bar to meet your Trip Leaders, who kick things off with a trip orientation. Then we depart on a traditional cyclo tour of Hanoi's Old Quarter. With its tree-lined boulevards, French colonial architecture, lakes and parks, Hanoi has been called the Paris of the Orient. The city is home to Hoan Kiem Lake (Lake of the Returned Sword), the site of a well-known national legend. Allegedly, the gods gave Emperor Le Loi a magic sword to help defeat Chinese invaders in the 15th century. After the victory, the Golden Turtle God (Kim Qui) took back the sword from the emperor as he was boating on the lake one day. It's a popular place, and you'll likely see locals out for their morning exercise, jogging, bicycling or practicing tai chi and other martial arts.

We continue to navigate the Old Quarter's winding streets, each still named for the wares originally sold there (e.g., Bamboo Street, Brass Street, Fish Street). After our cyclo adventure, we stop for lunch at a local restaurant, which serves up renowned Vietnamese fusion delights.

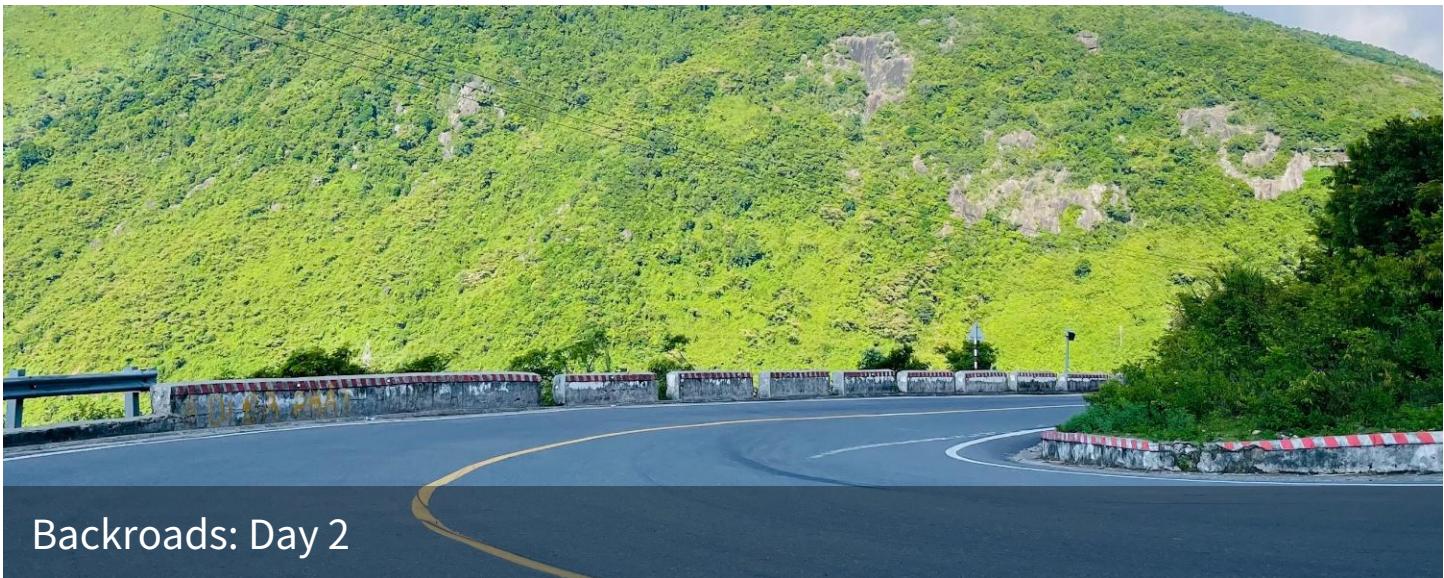

From lunch we set off on foot to explore one of Hanoi's untouched neighborhoods. Winding through narrow alleyways we get a true glimpse into the everyday life, passing locals on short red stools gossiping over afternoon coffee. We end our walk at Quán Thánh Temple, one of four magnificent temples built to protect the capitol from malevolent spirits.

After, you can join our local guide on a quick visit to Hoa Lo Prison, nicknamed the "Hanoi Hilton," which held American prisoners from 1964 to 1973; if you've already visited the site or prefer a relaxing afternoon, join us for a quick shuttle back to the Sofitel Legend Metropole, our home for the night. The rest of the afternoon is yours to explore Hanoi's shops, galleries and sites, or simply relax before we reconvene and walk to one of our favorite Hanoi restaurants for dinner.

Hanoi recently celebrated its 1,000-year anniversary, and evidence of old and new saturates the cityscape. The ancient citadel that once protected Hanoi from Mongol and Chinese invaders is just blocks from internet cafés and trendy shops. Noisy motorbikes zoom past elaborate pagodas and temples—you'll be constantly surprised by what a Vietnamese will strap to a motorbike!—and even time-honored agricultural practices are undergoing rapid changes. It's a place that bursts with energy and creativity, yet steadfastly holds to its traditions.

While that's part of what we love about Hanoi, be prepared for this city—and the rest of Vietnam and Cambodia—to feel chaotic and "messy," like most developing places. Have no fear; we've spent a great deal of time in Vietnam and Cambodia, and we'll help you navigate any challenges to get to the good stuff.

Day 7

Backroads: Day 2

SHUTTLE TO HANOI AIRPORT: 45 Minutes

FLIGHT TO HUÉ: 1 Hour

PHU BAI LAGOON ROUTE: 29 Miles (400' elevation gain)

HUÉ ROYAL CITADEL GUIDED WALK: 1 Hour

This morning we get going early for a flight to the World Heritage site of Hué, Vietnam's ancient capital. Flanked on three sides by hills, the city was previously reachable only via the Perfume River, making it the ideal place for its defenders to build citadels, high towers, moats and other fortifications, some of which can still be seen today. Despite its obvious military advantages—or maybe because of them—Hué was the scene of numerous battles and brutal invasions. Today people come here for the delicate peach blooms in spring, the summer blaze of flame trees along the riverbank and wonderful bicycling that's difficult to find elsewhere in Vietnam.

The roads of central Vietnam can be a little busy at times, but with guidance from our experienced team of Trip Leaders and local drivers, you'll be happily enjoying the sights from your saddle in no time.

Upon arriving in Hué, your Backroads Trip Leaders fit your bike and give a brief talk on biking techniques and safety, then you're off on a ride beside a picturesque lagoon, past roadside temples and through small fishing villages hugging the South China Sea.

Our route comes to an end at the Art Deco-style Azerai La Résidence Hué, where you're welcome to relax for the afternoon. Or, after you've had a chance to freshen up, join us for a walk to the 19th-century Royal Citadel of Hué for a tour. The Citadel walls protected the royals from both invaders and the rival armies of aspiring feudal lords from the 13th to the 17th century, when Hué was the capital of imperial Vietnam. Although much of the citadel was destroyed during the Tet Offensive in 1968, enough remains for us to have a compelling glimpse into the city's past. UNESCO has restored some of the adjacent complexes, including the Royal Theater, a library, a temple honoring the Nguyen emperors and a temple dedicated to the queens and princesses.

Dinner tonight is an at-your-leisure affair at the hotel's elegant restaurant.

Please note:

While we do everything possible to secure a morning flight from Hanoi to Hué, Vietnam Airlines (which is a state-sponsored airline and our only viable option) often changes schedules without warning. If this happens, we may have to leave Hanoi earlier in the morning or later in the day, and we appreciate your understanding and flexibility.

Backroads - Day 3

BIKING OPTIONS:

Emperor's Ride Route: 19 Miles (700' elevation gain)
Ancient Hué Route: 37 Miles (900')

KHAI DINH MAUSOLEUM GUIDED WALK: 30 Minutes

After breakfast, hop on your bike and join the throngs of scooters and bicycles crossing the bridge above the Perfume River. And when we say "throngs," we mean it! Though perhaps disorienting at first, your Trip Leaders and our team of local experts provide the support and good humor to turn this into an exciting and memorable part of this adventure instead of an intimidating obstacle. The pace will quickly calm down as we continue on our route, so take in the many facets of contemporary Vietnamese life, from the hardscrabble simplicity of rural villages to the excess and grandeur of the lavish mausoleums of Vietnam's imperial rulers. You'll be energized along the way by the invigorating scent of fragrant pine forests, the magic of crossing the Perfume River by dragon boat and the electric hustle and bustle of Hué's large urban center.

During your ride through the pastoral landscape, it may be hard to imagine suddenly coming upon a gigantic construction site. But as Vietnam experiences rapid expansion, you never know when our rural route may become a four-lane highway carrying loaded trucks and rumbling buses. That's just fine with us—Vietnam keeps us on our toes, and we thrive on the challenge of finding alternative, more Backroads-style pathways.

We stop to check out Khai Dinh Mausoleum, a particularly interesting tomb that blends Asian and European new-Gothic styles. The result is truly and uniquely Vietnamese. Then, after breaking for lunch, spin back to the hotel and lounge by the pool or treat yourself at the spa. (Spa treatments are not included in the trip price. Advance reservations are recommended.)

Tonight our friend Mr. Vinh welcomes us into his home, a typical Mandarin-style abode built at the turn of the 20th century. Before dinner we spend some time getting to know Mr. Vinh, whose range of experiences and interests gives him unique insight into Vietnam's history. A candlelit dinner among his lotus ponds and hanging-orchid gardens makes for a wonderfully Vietnamese experience!

Backroads - Day 4

SHUTTLE TO OCEAN CLOUDS PASS: 1½ Hours

BIKING OPTIONS:

Coastal Route: 20 Miles *(100' elevation gain)

Skip the Hill Route: 29 Miles *(500')

Ocean Clouds Pass to Quan Yin View Route: 35 Miles (2,500')

SHUTTLE TO FOUR SEASONS RESORT THE NAM HAI: 30 Minutes

with shuttle*

Today we shuttle south toward the base of Hai Van (or Ocean Clouds) Pass. Bike over the pass or grab an air-conditioned lift to the top. Either way, it's an impressive ride, made possible only recently by the new tunnel that diverts most traffic through the mountain. As Murphy's Law would have it, large smoke-belching trucks generally take the slow option to avoid paying the tunnel toll. Fortunately for us, the beautiful view over the South China Sea makes sharing the road with them completely worthwhile!

Descend into the port city of Danang—not the prettiest of towns, but certainly colorful with its fleet of squid fishing boats. Bike around town and over one of the country's newly constructed suspension bridges, which affords spectacular views of Danang and the coast. Spin along Danang Harbor to the base of one of Vietnam's largest statues of Quan Âm, often referred to as the "female Buddha," then head to lunch at a seaside restaurant overlooking the bay.

Afterward we shuttle to Four Seasons Resort The Nam Hai, our gorgeous beachside retreat just outside of Hoi An. Or if you're keen to add more miles, make your way to Hoi An on two wheels. Afternoons in Vietnam tend to be quite hot and the road to Hoi An isn't the most scenic, but it's a good option if you want to maximize the time on your bike.

Set on the bank of the Thu Bon River, Hoi An is one of Vietnam's oldest towns, serving as an important East-West trade center during the 16th century. A World Heritage Site, it features exceptionally preserved 15th- to 19th-century buildings, bridges and pagodas. Notice the houses built using rare wood with lacquered boards and ornamental panels of engraved traditional Chinese characters. Narrow streets and low tiled roofs also echo a time long ago. Hoi An is a great place to shop (especially for tailored clothes!), stroll through markets and art galleries, and sample regional food. If you're inclined, join your leaders before dinner for a visit to our favorite tailor!

Tonight savor a scrumptious Four Seasons dinner at your leisure.

Backroads - Day 5

VILLAGE ROUTE VIA HOI AN LOOP: 25 Miles *(500' elevation gain)

with shuttle*

Just across the river from Hoi An lies a series of islands, ideal for two-wheeled exploration. It's a short drive to the starting point of today's ride, where you hop on your bike and begin pedaling a relatively level route along small lightly trafficked roads past a 400-year-old Japanese bridge and rice paddies and through villages. Locals—often curious about why foreigners would ride bicycles rather than scooters—flash you big smiles. Along the way, enjoy Vietnamese country life and relish the rare peace—few roads remain in the country that are this quiet, and those that do are increasingly filled with the new cars that middle-class Vietnamese can now afford.

To return to Hoi An, we travel up the Thu Bon river aboard our private ferry. (Note: High wind and waves can delay, and possibly prevent, our ferry crossing. If conditions are too rough, we'll shuttle across the bridge instead.)

Back on dry land, complete the loop to the hotel, passing the local market and hundreds of palms. You may want to order the day's fresh catch at a local seafood restaurant, where we stop for lunch. Otherwise you're welcome to return to the hotel for lunch on your own or choose from one of the many local eateries in Hoi An. Among the many traditional menu items Hoi An has to offer, you may be tempted by a popular dish like cau lau soup (beef broth with shrimp and pork, topped with crunchy onions, sesame seeds and croutons).

The rest of the afternoon is yours. Ready for some beach time? Maybe you'd prefer to explore more of Hoi An? Among the city's stores, old homes and markets, you're sure to find plenty of things worth seeing, doing and eating! If spending the whole day in Hoi An—or relaxing at The Nam Hai—sounds better than biking today, feel free to skip the ride altogether.

Later on we head into the heart of Hoi An for a wonderful dinner at a lively local restaurant.

Day 11

Backroads - Day 6

HOI AN BEACH LOOP: 14 Miles (100' elevation gain)

SHUTTLE TO DANANG AIRPORT: 45 Minutes

FLIGHT TO SIEM REAP, CAMBODIA: 2 Hours

SHUTTLE TO RAFFLES GRAND HOTEL D'ANGKOR: 30 Minutes

This morning we embark on one of our favorite local rides. Though not long, our route highlights some of the better aspects of cycling in Vietnam—scenic rice paddies, small villages, scattered pagodas and narrow country roads without a lot of traffic. Routes like this are harder and harder to find in Vietnam, so we encourage you to take a final spin here. Or you may prefer to enjoy the peace and luxury of our hotel. We reconvene for a vibrant farm-to-table lunch this afternoon.

The scenery will change quite a bit this evening when we fly to Siem Reap, Cambodia, home to the World Heritage site of Angkor, the country's monumental ancient capital. Built by the Khmer between the 9th and 13th centuries, it'll leave you breathless with its lofty spires, giant carved images and beautiful bas-reliefs. More visitors appear each year to see Angkor's incredible ruins, and Siem Reap has become a hotbed of tourism-related development. What's the upside? Fine galleries and restaurants are now a pleasant supplement to old cafés and traditional markets, and a host of modern conveniences can now be found in once-quiet Siem Reap. In spite of Cambodia's growth, flavors of old-world Indochina and a strong Khmer culture linger; you'll notice quite a different feel from Vietnam.

We spend the next two nights at Raffles Grand Hotel d'Angkor, recognized by Travel + Leisure and Condé Nast Traveler as one of the world's top hotels. This historic hotel's location can't be beat—removed from Siem Reap's busy downtown, yet close to the ruins—and it provides wonderful service. After settling into your room, check out the manicured grounds or walk to the city center before sitting down to dinner.

Please note:

As with our flight from Hanoi to Hué, Vietnam Airlines may make a last-minute change to today's flight schedule and we do appreciate your patience.

Siem Reap Route: 29 Miles (300')

BAYON TEMPLE GUIDED WALK: 30 Minutes

TA PROHM TEMPLE GUIDED WALK: 30 Minutes

Prepare to enter a world of stark contrasts: epic ruins of a once-powerful empire, impoverished small villages attempting to recover from years of Khmer Rouge rule, and the busy crowds of a quickly developing Siem Reap. While the most popular ruins see a steady flow of tourist buses, we avoid as much of that commotion as possible by hopping on bikes and pedaling through quiet settlements to lesser-visited—though no less impressive—areas. While taking the road less traveled can certainly be challenging, it's what gets you to the "real" Cambodia. As a result, you become a curious intrepid traveler as opposed to a tourist. And you'll also get to see the icons of Angkor—don't worry!—we'll time our visits to avoid the heavy crowds.

Today's ride takes you to several fascinating temples, including Ta Prohm and Bayon. To get started, we shuttle a short distance from Siem Reap to the Ta Prohm complex. Once at Ta Prohm, you'll feel as if you've landed on the set of an Indiana Jones movie. Because it was left in its natural state with little restoration, the jungle covers many of the buildings. In fact, a number of the enormous strangler fig roots that split the temple sculptures now help hold the complex together.

After our tour, your trip leaders fit your Cambodian mountain bike, then spin through the quieter part of Siem Reap along dirt roads and through rural villages. The people who live in this area also rarely see tourists—especially on bicycles—so be prepared for an enthusiastic reception, with special attention from the kids.

We're invited into the house of a local friend for a home-cooked lunch. Refueled, continue on your bike to Bayon, known for its massive smiling stone faces and impressive bas-reliefs. If you'd like, you can stop for a water blessing along the way. This is a solemn ritual that locals undertake to bring good luck—you may even see entrepreneurial taxi drivers getting their new vehicles blessed.

Then hop in the shuttle for a quick lift back to the hotel. Along the way, you can opt to visit Wat Thmey, a powerful "killing field" memorial. Although this can be a heavy experience, it's a moving way to learn about the Khmer Rouge and the genocide that devastated Cambodia during the 1970s.

Upon returning to the hotel, enjoy some leisure time. Treat yourself to a pampering at the hotel spa or lounge by the hotel pool, which was inspired by the ancient bathing pools of Angkor Wat. If you'd prefer to walk, shop or look around, head to central Siem Reap's markets and new galleries for local crafts and fine art. For our last night together, we savor mouthwatering Khmer cuisine.

Please note:

The weather in Siem Reap can be quite hot. To make biking as pleasant as possible, we may adjust our itinerary through the ruins. If it's a particularly hot season, we may visit in the cooler morning or late afternoon.

We begin the day with an early shuttle to Angkor Wat. Once there, we join our local friend and guide for a walk through the temple grounds. This spectacular place comes to life as you hear about the ruins and Cambodia's history while watching the morning sun illuminate the ancient carvings. Take time to soak it all in before pedaling past the ruins on your way back to the Raffles Grand Hotel d'Angkor for a farewell brunch. Afterward we board a shuttle for the Siem Reap airport, where we say our goodbyes.
