Kenzo Tsujimoto first achieved success as the founder of Capcom, a Japanese developer and publisher of video games. During that time, he became enchanted with the Napa Valley after the historic 1976 Judgment of Paris, which launched Napa Valley wines onto the world stage.

As Capcom's business expanded into the United States, Kenzo sought a serene location to offer an outdoor alternative to the company's indoor electronic sporting business. His affinity for California wine country and vision to build an outdoor retreat led him to a 3,800-acre mountain valley in Napa's southeast corner.

A photograph of the interior of Farmstead at Long Meadow Ranch. The restaurant has a rustic-chic design with wooden walls, hanging light fixtures, and large windows overlooking the outdoors. The dining area is filled with tables and chairs, and there is a bar counter in the foreground. The word "farmstead" is visible on the wall.

19th CENTURY: The Hagen Years

In 1852, young Henry Hagen arrives on a West Coast in the throes of continental expansion and the Gold Rush. He initially settles in San Francisco but in 1881 turns his attention slightly north, purchasing a parcel of land in the southern end of nearby Napa Valley, against the forested ridges of Mount George. There he founds Cedar Knoll Vineyard and Winery, where the Palmaz Vineyards and family reside today, just off what's now known as Hagen Road.

Hagen will become one of the true pioneers of the Napa Valley: His noteworthy wines are featured at the San Francisco Opera House and served to some of the finest people of the city, according to contemporary newspaper accounts. Hagen even wins a silver medal for his brandy at L'Exposition Universelle de Paris 1889 World's Fair.

20th CENTURY: From Prohibition to Revival

Hagen dies in 1895, leaving behind 450 acres of "fine vineland." While Cedar Knoll is lauded for its wines (and spirits), Hagen's descendants don't share his passion. With the arrival of Prohibition in 1919, the property's winemaking endeavors are abandoned until the Palmaz family purchases the property in the late 1990s and sets about restoring its former glory.

21st CENTURY: The Fusion of Tradition and Technology

Julio and Amalia Palmaz have always believed that if given the proper attention and care, their land can produce excellent wine for generations. Along with their children, Florencia and Christian Gastón (and Christian's wife, Jessica Louise), they set about creating a winery that leverages tradition and technology in the service of crafting great vintages. The result is a 600-acre estate with 64 acres of vineyards that produce truly modern vintages, thanks to the technology harnessed in support of the art of winemaking.

The Church Vineyard is one of Napa's iconic landmarks. Built in 1886 in Pleasant Valley, PA, the church was reconstructed in Napa and renovated in 2018. The original stained-glass windows, a bell tower and soaring 41-foot ceilings are surrounded by the 4 acres of Sauvignon Blanc vines that produce the Church Vineyard Sauvignon Blanc amidst the rolling hills of Carneros. These exclusive, private properties may be visited by invitation only.

Our fee is $25 per confirmation number to assist with seat assignments. Please note that airlines often charge for seat assignments. If you choose to obtain your own seat assignment please update us with your chosen seat assignments so we can upgrade our records.

Given the unpredictability of today's environment, BTA strongly recommends arriving to the airport at least 3 hours in advance for international travel and 2 hours in advance for domestic travel.
