IMPORTANT:
Passport, Visas & Other
Travel Requirements

IMPORTANT: Passport, Visas & Other Travel Requirements

Passport Requirements: Please be aware of the passport requirements for your upcoming trip.

- We strongly recommend that you check your passport's validity and the number of blank pages available well in advance of your departure date. If your passport does not meet the requirements, we advise you to renew it as soon as possible to avoid any travel disruptions.
- Checking the expiration date of your passport well in advance allows you ample time to renew it if necessary. Many countries require that your passport be valid for at least six months beyond your planned departure date. Failing to meet this requirement may result in denied entry or even being turned away at the airport.
- To validate your passport's expiration date and to understand the specific entry requirements for your destination country, we recommend visiting the official website of your country's passport agency or consulate. These websites provide accurate and up-to-date information regarding passport validity, visa requirements, and any additional entry regulations specific to each country.
- For travelers from the United States, the official website of the U.S. Department of State (travel.state.gov) offers comprehensive information on passport requirements, including a passport validity checker tool. This tool allows you to enter your destination country and travel dates to determine if your passport meets the necessary validity requirements.
- Additionally, it is essential to familiarize yourself with any visa requirements for your destination country. The same official websites mentioned earlier will provide information on visa requirements and how to obtain them.
- We strongly recommend that you review the entry requirements for each destination you plan to visit, including passport validity, visa requirements, and any other specific documentation needed for entry. It is essential to allow sufficient time for obtaining or renewing passports and visas, as processing times may vary.
- Please note that failure to meet the necessary travel document requirements may result in denied entry or other travel disruptions. We encourage you to thoroughly research and comply with all relevant travel regulations to ensure a smooth and hassle-free journey.
- If you have any questions or need assistance regarding travel document requirements, our team is available to provide guidance and direct you to reliable resources.

Disclaimer: Boutique Travel Advisors (BTA) would like to emphasize that it is the sole responsibility of our clients to ensure they possess valid passports, visas, and have met all other necessary requirements prior to travel. While we are here to provide guidance and support, BTA cannot assume responsibility for verifying or ensuring the validity of our clients' travel documents. Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

BTA requests that you check your flights 24 hours prior to departure and periodically prior to departure to stay alert of possible changes, delays, or cancellations. While we strive to provide accurate and up-to-date information, unforeseen circumstances such as weather conditions or operational issues can occasionally impact flight schedules. By taking a few moments to verify your flight status, you can ensure a smooth travel experience and make any necessary adjustments in a timely manner.

Note: BTA is NOT responsible for flight changes or cancellations.

Our travel app does not automatically adjust for flight changes therefore it is important that you rely on the Airline's Website and Check-In process for the most accurate and up-to-date information about your flight status.

Given the unpredictability of today's environment, BTA strongly recommends arriving to the airport at least 3 hours in advance for international travel and 2 hours in advance for domestic travel.

Safe travels.

Ribeira Neighborhood- Porto, Portugal

Porto's riverside quarter, known as the Ribeira, is one of the city's oldest neighbourhoods and certainly one of its highlights. The area was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1996 and it does not disappoint.

Historically the quayside here was one of the busiest points on the River Douro with cargo from both up and down-stream landed here before the short journey to the centre of the city. Today it is equally bustling but the major trade here is now tourism.

The waterfront (Cais da Ribeira) is long strip of cafes, restaurants and shops overlooking the river and the Port houses of Vila Nova de Gaia on the opposite bank. Many of these businesses are housed in what would once have been single-storey warehouses whilst above and behind are a row of colourful, if not a little faded, houses. Many of these old buildings, some of which are six storeys high are still home to the local population and you will often see washing drying off the balconies. Dominating the Cais da Ribeira is Porto's iconic Ponte Dom Luis I bridge which spans the Douro to Vila Nova de Gaia. Completed in 1886 the bridge was designed by a student of Gustave Eiffel and with its iron framework it is not difficult to guess. The double-decker bridge carries the city's metro trains on its top level and road traffic below. There is pedestrian access to both levels and it is well worth taking in the spectacular views from the 60 metre high top deck, if you have a head for heights.

Before the construction of the Dom Luis I bridge residents used to cross the river using a makeshift pontoon bridge made from around 20 old port boats lashed together by steel cables. The 'Ponte das Barcas' (Bridge of Boats) as it was known was built in 1806 and you can in fact still see the old pillars right next to the Dom Luis I bridge. Back in those days the crossing was made all the more precarious by the fact that the river was somewhat wilder as there were no dams upstream to calm the flow. Disaster struck in 1809 when, during the Peninsula Wars, Napoleon invaded the city. Fleeing residents rushed to the Ribeira and onto the bridge to escape. The old boats couldn't take the weight of the crowds and many were drowned that day. If you look closely there is a shrine-like monument close to the bridge, the Alminhas da Ponte, to those who died that day.

Behind the riverfront the city slopes steeply up and there is a fascinating maze of medieval streets and alleys. At their heart is the Praça da Ribeira, the centre of the old city's nightlife. Lined with bars and clubs to one side the square is dominated by the austere 17th century fountain behind which rises a three-storey granite wall featuring the Portuguese coat of arms and a statue of John the Baptist. However, this does not reflect the nature of the Ribeira Square today, as this is where the local population come to enjoy a night out whilst taking in the view across the river.

Heading up Rua de São João from Praça da Ribeira will rapidly take you up into the winding streets of central Porto, but it is the streets to the east which hold the most fascination. These dark, ancient cobbled alleyways such as Rua da Fonte Taurina and Rua da Reboleira refuse to be gentrified and retain an atmosphere of times gone by. Although hard to tell to the untrained eye these back streets are home to some of the Ribeira's best and most authentic restaurants.

In one of these streets, the Rua Alfandega (Customs house lane) you will find the Casa do Infante which is said to be the house in which Prince Henry the Navigator was born in 1394. This fine medieval townhouse later served as the city's custom house before becoming the home of the Royal Mint. Today, much renovated it houses the city archives along with a museum which displays, among other things, some remarkable Roman finds that were discovered during excavations of the site.

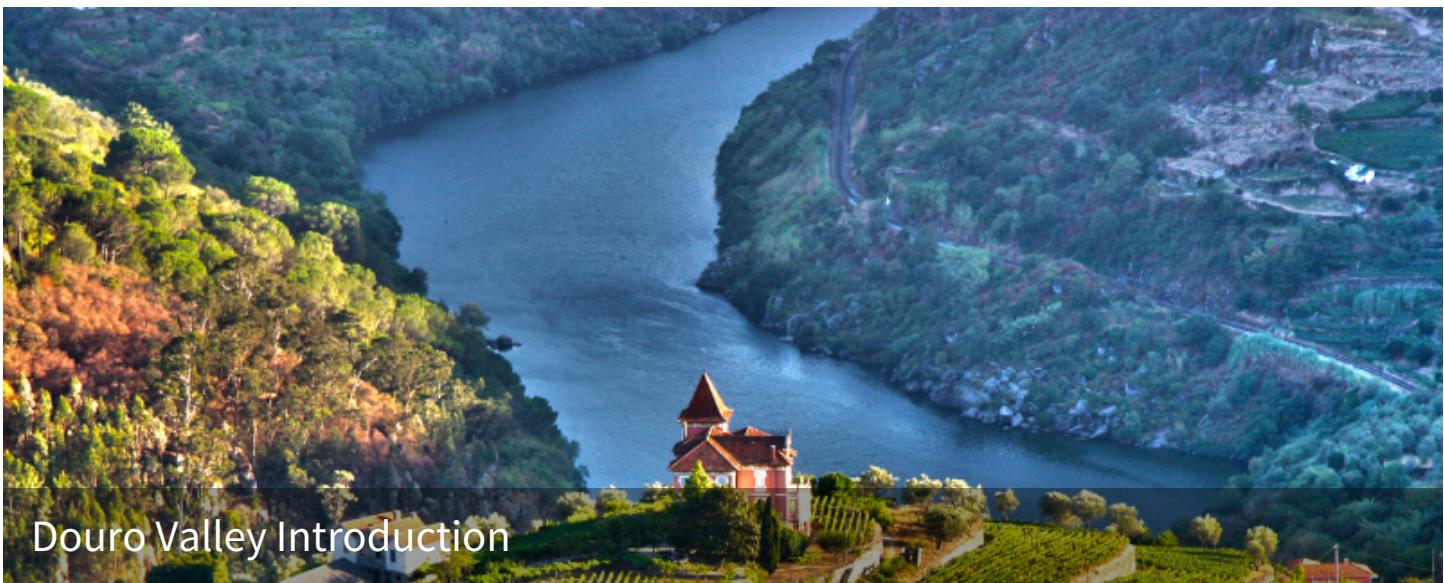

From here it is just a stone's throw across to some of the other great sights of Porto. Across the road are the gardens that also bear Prince Henry's name. Overlooking these are the imposing Palacio da Bolsa with its exquisitely ornate interior. Next door to this is the fine gothic Igreja de São Francisco with an equally sumptuous Baroque interior.

Day 3

Traversing Portugal's wine country, the Douro River valley makes for a wonderful scenic drive—interesting villages with ancient churches line the way. In its lower reaches, the Douro carves a deep, meandering canyon between rounded hills that are spectacularly stepped and terraced. Not an inch of usable land is wasted.

Towns along the valley include Lamego (museum with early Christian art, Romanesque cathedral and 13th-century castle ruins), Pinhao (the center of the wine industry—some vineyards are open for sampling) and Sao Joao da Pesqueira (an isolated but lovely village). Among the examples of Romanesque and Cistercian architecture is the stunning Sao Joao de Tarouca monastery.

Branching off from the Douro Valley is the Coa Valley, the world's largest open-air rock art site with stunning examples of Paleolithic engravings in situ along the banks of the rivers and streams.

Private Transfer from Porto - Lisbon with 1-2 Stops

8:30 AM

Start Time

Private Transfer Porto to Lisbon with stop in two authentic Portuguese Villages.

Villages Between Porto and Lisbon:

OPTION 1:

Obidos:

Obidos is considered to be one of the finest examples of a Portuguese walled town. Historically, Obidos was presented to the Queen of Portugal on her wedding day, a tradition that began with Queen Urraca in 1214 and continued until the 19th century. This royal patronage has left an enduring legacy of pride within the town, and today it is one of the most characterful towns of central Portugal. Walk along the narrow cobbled streets, traditional painted houses, and an imposing medieval castle.

Nazare:

Halfway between Lisbon and Porto, lies the stunning town of Nazare. Here on the Costa da Prata, or Silver Coast, the Atlantic ocean meets the land at her most powerful. Nazare is home to the largest surfing waves in the world, but you should still come to Nazare even if you're not a surfer.

The lighthouse on Praia do Norte is where you can see the monster waves crash into the cliffs. The lighthouse is also home to a small surf museum with surfboards and stories of famous surfers who had braved Nazare's monster waves.

OPTION 2:

Aveiro:

Nicknamed the "Venice of Portugal" due to its colorfully painted boats and winding canals, the charming town of Aveiro nevertheless has a unique personality all of its own. Located in central Portugal, just 75 kilometers south of Porto, this popular day trip destination is situated around the Ria de Aveiro lagoon famed for its salt, seaweed, and abundant fish.

Coimbra:

This lovely riverside city in central Portugal is the country's former capital, and home to a preserved medieval old town and the historic University of Coimbra. Built on the grounds of a former palace, the university is famed for its baroque library, the Biblioteca Joanina, and its 18th-century bell tower. In the city's old town lies the 12th-century Romanesque cathedral Sé Velha

What's it all about? A legendary Lisbon establishment that opened its doors as a men's club in 1958, Belcanto took on a new life when chef José Avillez took the helm in 2012. Under his culinary navigation, the restaurant earned its first Michelin star that year; a second followed suit just two years later.

What's the vibe? The intimate restaurant lies under high, vaulted ceilings and minimalist chandeliers, while light streams through the high windows. Belcanto's new home since 2019 offers its 45 guests two tasting menus and an à la carte option, which take diners on a gastronomic journey of contemporary Portuguese cuisine.

Playing the hits: Standout plates include hake in fig leaf, served with roasted baby leak, barbela wheat crunchy toast and smoked ham. A taste of the seas comes from the springtime scarlet shrimp with shrimp head curry, green apple gel, asparagus and coriander.

Other ventures: A well-known face on Portuguese TV for his cooking show Improbabilicious, Avillez has also published four cookbooks. His food empire harbours a cluster of restaurants in Lisbon and Porto, including Bairro do Avillez, a food hall housing four distinctive eateries under one roof. A wine aficionado, Avillez has developed three vintages under the JA line with Quinta do Monte D'Oiro winery.

Worth noting: Avillez fans should book seats at Belcanto's Chef's Table for ringside culinary action in the kitchen.
